(Continued from first page.) pressed itself. The late John J. O'Brien was Chairman of the County General Committee, but it was supposed that the Union League Club and the 'better element' of the party were dissatisfied.

The year before, when Allan Campbell ran against Franklin Edson for Mayor, and the Democrats nominated Patrick Keenan for County Clerk, there was a 'people's movement,' and William A. Butler was its candidate against Keepan. The 'better element' desired that we indorse Butler, but Mr. O'Brien was put up, and of course Mr. Keenan was elected.

"Then it was that the 'better element' began to complain. They said that the leaders held their places by reason of a close corporation, and not by the votes of the majority of the party in the represent ative districts. They claimed that in this way John J. O'Brien had maintained his control of the county organization, had held on to the chairmanship of the County Committee, and had thus been able to force his own nomination for County Clerk.

Mr. O'Brien went about among then inoniring as to the cause for the discontent He asked if there was any fault to find with Leader Michael W. Burns in the First District, Dennis Shes in the Second, C. N. Taintor in the Third and so on through the whole list.

"Finally he was induced to appoint the famous ' Committee of Eighteen,' to inspire the confidence of the Republican voters and formulate a plan of reorganization. "Chairman O'Brien selected a committee composed of these very men, and they preented another new constitution. "By this constitution a new enrolment was to be taken, and then each year there after there was to be a new enrolment o the Republicans in each Assembly district. Each district was given a representation in the County Committee proportionate to the Republican vote in the district at the last preceding election. At the primaries only enrolled Republicans were entitled to vote, and each primary was presided over by a Board of Inspectors elected at the preeding primary.

"For this first primary it was provided that in each district there should be five enrolling officers, who should also be inspectors at the primary. These five should be appointed by the Committee of Eighteen and two of them should be selected from the existing district organization—that is the ins '-two from 'the cuts' in the dis trict, and one should be a member of the Union League and not a resident of the

" The plan was accepted and adopted by the County General Committee. By it the annual enrolments were decreed and all power vested in the enrolled men, who selected the members of the County Committee and District Committees of forty votes were seated by the Committee in OVETY CASE.

"Then came a spirited canvass for the Chairmanship of the County General Committee. The Union League and 'better element' pushed Mr. Marvelle W. Cooper, now Appraiser of the Port by appointmen of President Harrison.

"Such men as Elthu Root, Charles N. Taintor, now a Police Justice; Whitelaw Reid, Edward Mitchell and Prof. Dwight support d Mr. Cooper, but O'Brien was re-elected atter all.

"The new scheme had demonstrated on thing, at heast. It showed that what had been said was not true. That there were no close corporations, but that the old leaders were the choice of a majority of the party in their respective districts.

"It showed that while the Union League's views might have some merit, organizations in a city constituted as New York is, with a large foreign-born element, must find it necessary to embrace and take in these people.

IS THE KEY.

Gas pressure increases upon all open burners in direct proportion as other burners are turned off at the key; hence, only one-half the burners lighted will register the same aggregate consumption as if all burners were in actual service, thus explaining the Consumer's inability to economize in his gas bills by turning off a part of his service and living in semi-dark-

The practical effect of our "automatic system" is that of equalizing the pressure im all portions of the building, thereby requiring each individual burner to consume only its proper registered capac-ity, regardless of the constantly changing "street pressure" con-ditions, or whether one burner or one hundred burners are in actual
